To Our Valued Customers,

CA Technologies (CA) today announced it has completed the acquisition of Automic Holding GmbH (Automic), a leader in business automation software. The close of this acquisition represents a significant milestone in CA's strategy. It broadens CA's solution sets and automation capabilities to better serve customers as they seek to drive competitive advantage in today's application economy.

We at CA and Automic both understand how critical automation has become to our customers' success. The addition of Automic extends CA Technologies solutions to deliver a market leading automation portfolio. Automic also complements CA's market presence – enabling us to better serve you, our customers, globally.

The completion of this acquisition enables CA to deliver automation across all technologies: mainframe to distributed to cloud and across all roles including App Dev to IT to Line of Business through one integrated solution that can be consumed on-premise and in the cloud.

CA Technologies and Automic share a common vision for the future of business process automation that enables our customers to be nimble and capitalize on opportunities quickly. We are excited about the opportunity we bring as one company. We look forward to continuing our relationship and helping you to leverage automation as a critical part of your digital transformation initiatives.

If you have any questions, please feel free to reach out to your existing CA and Automic contacts or visit www.ca.com/automic for more information.

Sincerely,

Todd DeLaughter CEO Automic Adam Elster President, Global Field Operations CA Technologies
