

Subject: Product Obsolescence

[Group E: Low volume Lamp Arrays]

Hewlett-Packard has decided to discontinue the production of LED multiple element right angle array housings. We are pleased to be able to recommend replacement devices from Dialight Corporation, USA. These replacement parts use high quality HP LEDs and have identical dimensions and functionality as their HP equivalents. The Dialight part numbers are identical to their HP equivalents.

[Group F: S-4 and Annunciators (new part number format)]

Part numbers with the old part number format for the following product lines are being formally obsoleted. Customers' worldwide have been informed to change to the new number format by July 31, 1999. This is a reminder that the old part numbers and options listed will be available to order only until July 31, 1999.

[Group G: Integrated Displays (new part number format)]

This is a reminder that the old part numbers and options listed will be available to order only until July 31, 1999.

[Group H: Through-hole Lamps (new part number format)]

This is a reminder that the old part numbers and options listed will be available to order only until July 31, 1999.

[Group K: Polyleds (new part number format)]

Part numbers with the old part number format for the following product line are being formally obsoleted. Customers' worldwide have been informed to change to the new number format by July 31, 1999. This is a reminder that the old part numbers and options listed will be available to order only until July 31, 1999.

[Group L: Low volume Motion Control Products]

Our records show no order/low order activity over the past five years for these products. Note that although we are obsoleting these part numbers, we will activate these part numbers again within one week if there are significant orders. Please contact for Field Sales Engineer if you need to order these part numbers in the future. Otherwise, we request that you place your life time buys at this time.

[Group M: Automotive Exterior Products (HPWA-xL00 series)]

Hewlett-Packard is making the HPWA-xL00 series of products obsolete. After our HPWT-xL00 series products were released, demand for our HPWA-xL00 series products dropped. Producing this product family in such low quantities is not cost effective. HP recommends that customers replace HPWA-xL00 devices with HPWT-xL00 devices in all their applications. Otherwise, we request that you place your life time buys at this time.

[Group N: Solid State Lighting {TS AlGaAs T-1 (3mm) and T-1 ¾ (5mm) lamps}]

Hewlett-Packard is obsoleting a set of TS AlGaAs T-1 (3mm) and T-1 ¾ (5mm) through-hole high brightness red LEDs. HP is de-emphasizing TS AlGaAs as a material system for high-brightness red LEDs, in favor of the more popular AlInGaP, which has proven to be more reliable in long-life outdoor applications, and more efficient. The suggested replacement parts use AlInGaP. They will not be drop-in replacements in all applications. Differences include dominant wavelength (TS AlGaAs produces a deeper red color) and, in some cases, viewing angle. Often the listed suggested replacement is not the only alternative. We request that you place your life time buys at this time.

[Group Y: Low volume Oval Lamps]

Our records show no order/low order activity over the last year for these products. Due to the lack of demand for these products we are announcing their obsolescence.

[Group Z: Integrated Displays (no longer able to manufacture)]

Hewlett-Packard is no longer able to manufacture these parts due to a lack of raw materials and equipment. No life time buys will be offered.

Again, final orders for the products listed must be placed by June 30, 2000, and final shipments made by December 31, 2000. Please do not hesitate to call if you have any questions.

Sincerely,

Hewlett-Packard Field Sales Engineer
